THE BROOKS AND BURLINGAME DIFFICULTY.

PLAIN STATEMENT OF THE FACTS.

CARDS FROM MESSRS. BURLINGAME AND CAMPBELL.

The Senate Substitute for the House Kansas Bill—Prevarication Conclusion of Sumner's Speech.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, July 27.

The Republicans propose to join with the opposition to-morrow and take up the Senate's substitute for the bill for the admission of Kansas, and dispose of it. The policy seems to me doubtful, because, while it is futile now to hope that the Senate will consent to any course not certain to make Kansas a Slave State, there is danger that if the pull is given up, enough weak-kneed Northern men may join the Democracy to eventually carry the Senate bill.

I learn from excellent authority that Senator Sumner is not improving in health under the influence of the usually invigorating sea breeze. His physical debility still continues with perverse tenacity,—a most discouraging symptom in the estimation of those friends who know how vigorous his constitution heretofore has been, how temperate his habits, and perfect his former health. He has left Cape May for the mountains, hoping to be benefited by the change from sea to mountain air; but from the evidence before me I cannot avoid the painfully painful conclusion that he will never recover from the effects of the Brooks assault. THE BROOKS AND BURLINGAME DIFFICULTY.

Statement of Mr. Campbell.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, July 27.

The following document will appear in the Intelligencer of Monday:

The publication of Hon. P. S. Brooks, in the Times of the 23d inst., with the note of his friend, General Lane, appended, in which my name is mentioned, will, I hope, excuse me in presenting the following statement of facts in reference to my connection with the subject which it discusses:

On the 21st inst., about 7 o'clock P. M., meeting Mr. Burlingame on the Pennsylvania avenue, he handed me the following note, and requested me to act as his friend and adviser, first assuring me that he had decided to accede to the request it contained:

WASHINGTON, July 21, 1856.

SIR: Will you do me the kindness to indicate a place outside of this District, where it will be convenient to you to negotiate in reference to the difference between us? Very respectfully, etc.,

HON. A. BURLINGAME. P. S. BROOKS.

The hostile meeting was proposed by the north, and I agreed to render the desired service. Having reason to suspect from the circumstances connected with the case, from rumors I had heard, and from my knowledge of schemes that are sometimes resorted to in regard to such matters in Washington, that meddling persons might seek to tarnish Mr. Burlingame's reputation by an arrest, I advised him to leave the street immediately; which he did, and to prepare to absent himself from the District.

At 8 o'clock, he met me at a private room by appointment. The following reply was prepared, and I was instructed to deliver it to Col. Brooks, in person, as soon as he could be found—this being deemed the proper course, because he had not authorized in his note any person authorized to receive it:

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 21, 1856.

SIR: Your note of this date was placed in my hands by Gen. Lane, this afternoon. In reply, I have to say that I will be at the Clifton House, on the Canada side of Niagara Falls, on Saturday next, at 12 o'clock M., to "negotiate" in reference to any "difference between us," which in your judgment may require settlement "outside of this District." I have the honor to be, your obedient servant,

HON. P. S. BROOKS. A. BURLINGAME.

I took a carriage at 2 o'clock, and sought for Col. Brooks, with a view to deliver the reply to him. Failing to find him at his lodgings, I looked for him unsuccessfully, at the hotels, until 11 o'clock—Mr. Burlingame having expressed great anxiety that the purpose should be delivered immediately. I then repaired to the residence of Gen. Lane, and found him entertaining visitors. As soon as his company left, I wrote, at his table, the following note, as a history of my reasons for delivering to him Mr. Burlingame's reply to Col. Brooks:

WASHINGTON, July 21, 1856—11 o'clock P. M.

MY DEAR SIR: This evening, about 8 o'clock, Hon. A. Burlingame handed me a note addressed to Hon. P. S. Brooks, which I promised to deliver immediately. Failing to find the gentleman at his lodgings, I decline to retain the note, and have sought you at your residence, with a view to your delivering it to Mr. Brooks. I have sought you at your residence, with a view to your delivering it to Mr. Brooks. I have sought you at your residence, with a view to your delivering it to Mr. Brooks. I were stationed in front of the Pacific Street armory, and other [illegible] of the city, whenever the [illegible] companies that met to drill within the vicinity of preventing the [illegible] their arms.

The main body of the Vigilant troops were drawn up on both sides of the armory, at the corner of Battery and Kearney streets, where Judge TERRY and the party had taken refuge. The two doors and window shutters were closed and fastened, and the aspect of affairs in that vicinity began to promise warm work; but after the lapse of fifteen minutes or more, the party inside, through Dr. ASHE, gave notice that they did not contemplate making any resistance, but desired to confer with some member of the Executive Committee upon the terms of surrender. The request was granted without hesitation, and soon after a delegation of the Committee made their appearance, and held a short conference with the parties inside, which ended with a written demand being made for the surrender of the building, including all the arms and ammunition therein, together with the persons of Judge TERRY, MALONEY, and PHILLIPS. An answer was required within fifteen minutes, at the expiration of which the party inside were again notified of the determination of the Committee to gain possession of the building and of the parties above named. To this it was replied that they would give up Judge TERRY and MALONEY, but that JOHN PHILLIPS was not in the armory. They desired that Judge TERRY and MALONEY should be protected from the violence of the people.

The request was acceded to, and at the same time they were reminded that the time given them to consider the proposition had expired. The doors were then thrown open, and TERRY and MALONEY entered a carriage that had been provided for their removal. Dr. ASHE and Mr. JONES were also provided with a carriage.

The surrender of the arms immediately followed. The guns were piled upon drags, and the ammunition and accoutrements stowed into wagons. The carriages were preceded and followed by troops of cavalry and companies of infantry. As they passed through the lines drawn up in front of the Plaza Armory, the Companies presented arms and commenced cheering; but by a wave of the hand of Chief Marshal DOANE all was stilled. The Judge and his friends were at once taken to the Committee Rooms. A few moments later the Plaza armory—the most important armory of the State force—surrendered. It was occupied by the Jackson Guards, Union Rifles and one other Company, portions of each of which had gained their quarters before the investment. At their Colonel called the roll, each man delivered up his arms. The surrender of the other armories followed in quick succession—and at 6 P. M., all the arms and munitions of war of the Law-and-Order organization were safely housed in Sacramento-street. All the men found in the armories were marched two and two to the Committee Rooms, and placed in irons.

About eighty were thus marched from the Plaza armory. They were all kept till Sunday morning, 10 o'clock, when, with a warning not to be found in arms again, they were marched, single file, through a long line of the Vigilance troops drawn up on both sides of Sacramento-street, and dismissed. I presume that the object of their detention was that they might be marked for future reference. They were a most villainously-looking crew, and mostly answered to Irish names.

A CARGO OF "BRICKS" FROM POINT SAN QUENTIN.

While the excitement was at its height in the city on Saturday, a scene bearing some affinity to the scenes on shore was being enacted in the harbor. It appears that a second cargo of arms and ammunition destined for the use of the opponents of the Vigilance Committee, had nearly reached their destination, when the vessel was boarded by a boat, containing a party of the Vigilants, and, notwithstanding the assertion of the parties in charge of the suspected vessel that she was freighted with bricks from the State prison at Point San Quentin, a little investigation proved that she carried rather too many guns for a simple trading craft. The vessel was apparently loaded with brick, but upon turning over a portion of the cargo, twelve cases of rifles and six cases of ammunition were developed. The warlike implements were landed, and were stowed away, just about the time the Committee troops had accomplished the work on shore.

ARREST OF JOHN L. DUNKER FOR PIRACY.

A complaint was made by JOHN PHILLIPS on Saturday last, before GEO. PECK JOHNSON, United States Commissioner, for the arrest of J. L. DUNKER, for piracy on the high seas, in the boarding of the schooner Julia, and taking possession of the State's arms.

A few persons expressed a hope that the Committee troops would go down to the office of the United States Marshal and rescue Mr. DUNKER. It is needless to say that these persons are sympathizers with the law-and-order faction.

After a full examination before the Commissioner, Mr. DUNKER was admitted by United States Judge HOFFMAN to $25,000 bail, and is now at liberty. As under the law, nothing more than technical piracy can be made out of the act, the Committee have not the least fear as to the result.

MR. HOPKINS.

Mr. HOPKINS is a native of Ellsworth, Maine, about 35 years of age, and has a wife and sister residing here. He has been a very active and zealous member of the Vigilance Committee, who had the utmost confidence in his firmness and prudence in the discharge of the duties entrusted to him. It is impossible to say whether he will survive his terrible wound. God grant he may, for the sake of his family, as well as of the future peace of the city. If he lives Judge TERRY will only be expelled from the State. But if it should unhappily fall out otherwise, there are thousands in this city who think Judge TERRY's life should be the forfeit.

Perhaps in the latter case a compromise may be brought about which will terminate all our difficulties. Nothing less, however, than the resignation of Judge TERRY's associate on the bench, HUGH C. MURRAY, and the dismissal of others high in office, together with a revocation of the military orders of the Governor, will satisfy the people. But whether HOPKINS dies or lives, Judge TERRY will never again be allowed to occupy the Supreme bench. If the Governor persists in his mad course, the Committee must keep up its organization and stand to its arms until it can make a new Legislature, which shall pass a law of general amnesty—and God only knows how much more blood may be shed before that can be brought about.

From what I wrote you in my last, of Judge TERRY's violent disposition, you will not be so much astonished that he has fallen into this great trouble. He has ever been ready to appeal to the bowie-knife and revolver, rather than to reason and the law, and he has no right to complain of the position his own folly has placed him in. He is a young man—only 35 years of age—and is acknowledged to be an able lawyer. He is a native of Kentucky, but when a boy went to Texas, and was identified with many of the struggles of that State for her independence. His wife is also from Kentucky, and is an estimable lady. I believe he has two children.

It is known that but for Judge TERRY's bad advice to Gov. JOHNSON, our difficulties would long ago have been settled. It is the opinion of almost every one that he came to San Francisco in company with that foolish fire-eater, Gen. VOLNEY E. HOWARD, determined to precipitate a collision, and that he counted upon his high position as an immunity against his violence. He will find, the Vigilance Committee is no respecter of persons in the great reform they have undertaken. Still, a great many influential gentlemen are interceding for his life through the columns of the public press, and it is said that more than five hundred of his friends in the country are here, endeavoring to operate upon the Committee in his favor. Hon. Judge SHATTUCK has published a couple of columns, the main argument of which is, that as Judge TERRY was acting under the orders of Dr. ASHE, the commander of a regularly organized military company, and we being in a state of war, prisoners taken in arms are entitled to the rules governing such a state. A few days at most will decide the fate of both HOPKINS and TERRY. It is understood the Judge has been tried, and that the Committee are only waiting the result of the wound he inflicted to pass sentence upon him.

The Committee yesterday had some ten or a dozen men confined in its prison, who, it is presumed, will be sent off to-day. Besides these, some twenty or thirty more are under orders to quit. [illegible]

[illegible] mountains [illegible]

The O[illegible] strengthened its [illegible] the State arms [illegible] relaxed in the least for [illegible] THE POWERS OF [illegible]

Yesterday, the Fourth of July, passed off [illegible] quietly. On account of the unsettled state of the city, there was no public celebration. A [illegible] military and other companies [illegible] two United States shallops-of-war from the navy yard [illegible] morning and evening salutes. It was reported that the soldiers of the Vigilance Army, 2,000 strong, would [illegible] of a camp drill, by one of the companies; they made no demonstration. Nothing unpleasant occurred, save the murder, at the Lagunas, in the evening, of two Chinamen, by some persons unknown.

Business has improved a little the past fortnight, but still it is very dull. Most kinds of goods fail to bring remunerative prices. The clippers Wizard and Storm King and Sarah arrived this week, from New-York, and the Black Warrior, Stars King and Tycoon, from China. The latter vessels brought about 1,800 Chinese. There are yet ten or twelve clippers due from Boston and New-York. The flour speculation, as I predicted at its commencement, has fallen through. It is found that Oregon has a considerable surplus—and our coming crop will turn out better than was supposed. Besides, with the low price of flour in New-York, we shall expect the clippers loading to fill up any deficiency in freight, with flour. We have sent, the last seventy days, about 80,000 barrels to Australia—and freights of the article are still wanted at $11 50 per ton.

THE OREGON WAR.

The Indian wars in the Territories, thanks to the wisdom and energy of General WOOL, and no thanks to the two Governors, have come to an end. The General has thus stopped a great leak in the United States Treasury, and subtracted largely from the political capital of territorial wire-pullers.

POLITICS.

In political matters we are all at sea. It is evident, however, that our local and State elections are to turn upon the actions of the Vigilance Committee; but I do not think our Presidential canvass will be much affected by the events now transpiring. The position of candidates for the United States Senate will be somewhat changed, undoubtedly. Dr. GWIN is in no way compromised by the political rascalities that have been developed, and is, therefore, the most prominent man that will come before the next Legislature.

ARREST OF A GAMBLER.

I forgot to mention that DAN ALDRICH, a noted gambler and political chief, has been arrested, and is now in the hands of the Committee. A letter was found on him from Hon. P. T. HERBERT, regretting that he could not procure for him the appointment of United States Marshal, as he had already committed himself for Mr. MCDUFFIE.

Miss JULIA DEAN HAYNE has been playing for the past ten nights at the Metropolitan, to full houses. She is supported by Mr. CHARLES POPE, a not very brilliant actor. F. W. H.

Execution of Two Murderers.

FIFE THE ATTEMPT TURNED OUT TO GUARD THE PRISONERS—REFUSAL OF THE MILITARY TO ACT—STATEMENTS OF KELLY AND GARRETT.

By the telegraphic dispatches published below, received from the Sacramento correspondent of the Tribune, we learn of the execution of GARRETT and KELLY. GARRETT, it will be recollected, murdered BRICKELL, after having seduced and ran off with his daughter, by shooting him with a Colt's revolver.

It is but just to say here that GARRETT has since married Miss BRICKELL, who has been to him since his confinement all that a wife could be.

KELLY was convicted of being an accomplice with HICKEY FREE, in the murder of a party of men at Slippery Ford, some months ago.

At 11½ o'clock they were followed to Sutter's Fort, the place of execution, by at least six thousand persons. At 1 o'clock the prisoners ascended the platform, accompanied by Rev. Mr. SHUCK, Sheriff WHITE and three of his deputies, Marshal MCALPIN, and the reporters of the press.

The prisoners appeared firm and self-possessed. [illegible] WILLIAM STEWART KELLY stepped in front of the stand and said:

GENTLEMEN AND LADIES: I am not guilty of murder. Bad company has led me to this. Were you all against bad company. I have nothing more to say. Mr. SHUCK has a written statement of mine, which he will publish after my execution.

KELLY was born in Uniontown, Monroe County, Va., and aged 25 years.

CONFESSION OF KELLY.

As only a few hours will elapse ere I pass from time to eternity, in accordance with the decree of fallen man, one word of humanity cannot offer to the living—a confession of such would be useless mockery. I am a young man, of parents carefully religious and of highest respectability, and, while I never took the life of a human being, my counsel is to you, oh! young men and maidens, avoid bad company; the mingling in vile associations; the listening to advice of wicked men, and the keeping of bad company, in opposition to my early religious training, the counsel of my father and mother, and the voice of conscience, have brought my earthly career to its present ignominious end. From my first imprisonment in this city I have endeavored to follow the instructions of a spiritual guide. I have bitterly repented of the past; have sought divine forgiveness; have certainly read the Bible and prayed, and turn with fixed trust in the merits alone of the merciful, forgiving and ascended Son of God. I meet without fear my ignoble fate just on eternity's awful brink, and lift my voice for the last time, and say aloud to young men, avoid bad company, and follow the advice and example of the Sabbath-keeper and the Church goer. (Signed) WM. S. KELLY.

Dated, Prison Bars, June 27, 1856.

SPEECH OF SAMUEL GARRETT.

SAMUEL GARRETT addressed the crowd in the following words:

"GENTLEMEN AND LADIES:—I am innocent of the murder of Mr. BRICKELL; he sought me and forced me to kill him. It has been reported that his wife and daughter conspired against him, and encouraged me to kill him. Those statements are not true, am the guilty party, and the only one to blame, though he forced me to kill him."

He made a long written confession, which amounts to nothing more than what was elicited on the trial. He was barkeeper for BRICKELL, when his daughter formed an attachment for him. Her mother consented to their union, but her father would not consent to it. Miss BRICKELL told him she would run off with him, and leave her parents. He advised her not to, but she insisted and said that she would go and leave them anyhow. GARRETT took her away from her father's house, and after some time returned, when her father told GARRETT he must leave the city, that both of them could not live in the same place. They immediately attacked each other, and GARRETT killed him on the spot. GARRETT was from Chambersburg, Pa., aged 22 years. A delegation of the Fire Department assisted the Sheriff in guarding the prisoners. The military companies would not turn out.

From the Utah Valleys.

From Col. L. A. NORNOV, who has just returned from Carson Valley, says the Placerville American, we obtain much interesting intelligence from the Valleys of Western Utah. The great migration of Mormons, of which we have made mention heretofore as being on the way from Salt Lake, consisting of one hundred and ten families and nearly as many wagons, with large numbers of cattle, even thousands, were within three days drive of their places of destination, the beautiful Valleys of the Wash-ho and the Truckee. Col. NORNOV left the Valley. OSMOX HYDE was erecting a new saw and grist mill in Wash-ho Valley, to be propelled by an overshot wheel, one of the mountain streams that in such numbers and great beauty are found over full and leaping to the Valleys. WELLINGTON FRIEDMANN, a well-known mechanic of this county, is employed upon the mills, and the whole business is under the immediate supervision of Mr. R. KELLY, late of Lake Valley, on the summit of the Sierras. Both mills will be in operation in a very few weeks. No country can be more charming than these magnificent and fertile Valleys, and none can offer them in advantages for stock-growing; while the accession of so large a number of people to their permanent homes in our immediate vicinity, and dependent upon this city as their only point of trade with California, cannot but tend greatly to increase the now rapidly improving trade of this city.

From Salt Lake.

On Friday last, says the Placerville American, four wagons and the following persons arrived in town from Salt Lake: ISAAC MILLER, sent from Sacramento to Salt Lake last fall, to bring away [illegible] sisters from among the Mormons; but [illegible] failed upon them to remain. The [illegible] Mr. MILLER brings through [illegible] Mr. JACOB CAIN, [illegible] TAMMA, a widow lady, and [illegible] Robinson, another [illegible] Lake Valley; also [illegible] called [illegible] earth wagon is Mr. [illegible] [illegible] children. All the above are [illegible] and the lower valleys. From Mr. MILLER, we learn that GILBERT & GARRISON are attempting the [illegible] of a mile at Salt Hell, lost all the seventy head of cattle they took up. THOMAS WILLIAMS & Co. brought through last Fall, 200 head as far as Weber River, forty miles the other side of Salt Lake, where they overtaken and shut in by the snow, and every animal but three, and one of the three mangled by Indians upon them perished.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

From the San Francisco Shipping List.

The decline in rates noticed in our last steamer [illegible] continued throughout the past fortnight, and a [illegible] has been reached at a close which has not [illegible] since the middle of last March. Immediately [illegible] sailing of the last steamer the bark Lima was [illegible] for Sydney, and has since loaded and cleared [illegible] having on board 5,600 bbls. This indication of [illegible] determination of operators to continue the [illegible] would, it was probably thought, rally the [illegible] had declined in the preceding fortnight [illegible] and give a length to the market; but it was [illegible] of the desired effect, and at an auction sale a [illegible] afterwards, $250 was the best that could be [illegible] for a parcel of superfine domestic. Since then the [illegible] of the demand, the actual advent of the [illegible] and the general indisposition to operate [illegible] outside parties, has tended still further to [illegible] the market, and at the close we doubt if any [illegible] could be quoted at over $200@$210, while the [illegible] to be market are held for $200@$210, or upwards. The [illegible] of the fortnight have been of the [illegible] character, not exceeding 114,000 feet quite [illegible] to show the state of the mill-stream gil, at which [illegible] night's business ceased.

The Sacramento and Marysville millers have already commenced grinding new wheat, so that the prospect for material improvement in prices is indeed poor. At the time, the impression appears to prevail generally [illegible] the farmers will not part with their crops this season [illegible] to say way freely, and as they are, as a class, able to [illegible], there is considerable reason to believe that prices will go below those now ruling—at least for any [illegible] time—and it is certain that the prosperity of the country does not demand it. In fact, we are inclined to the opinion that the highest rate which could be established without [illegible] the danger of shipments from abroad; any [illegible] would be the most beneficial for the country at large. As it is, Flour is lower to-day in San Francisco than in any foreign ports from which we formerly were in the habit of receiving breadstuffs. In barrel Flour a merely [illegible] business has been done during the past fortnight, and the market, as we write, is extremely dull at our quotations.

The importation of Flour during the past six months has been large, amounting to no less than 49,981 barrels; there can be little doubt that had the original [illegible] of shipping were in March and April [illegible] carried out, a better state of affairs would have [illegible] at present. The movement, however, was [illegible] finally frustrated by the want of [illegible] among the parties interested; and it must now be admitted that the advance in price, unaccompanied by the shipment of a part of the surplus, was not properly based. Our readers will remember that we called attention to this point at the time, and urged the propriety of attempting an advance. Indeed, as [illegible] of the first of January we stated the case fully, and [illegible] of stock and future receipts have proved [illegible] correct. We then (January 5) stated the [illegible] bbls. 144,[illegible]

NEWS FROM SOUTH AMERICA.

Chili.

Dates from Valparaiso are to the 15th of June.

The Chilian Congress opened on the 1st June; the President presented his annual message, and the Chambers of 1856 were constitutionally opened.

The Minister's message presents no new ideas of administration, but speaks strongly in favor of the system of improvements which has developed itself throughout the country. It is considered that these will be adopted.

The Congress was occupied with the following subjects: that of a law exempting from duties of importation all wharfs, bridges and railways; also that of numbers from 1 to 6.

The law enforcing the residence of the permanent money on the spot where Congress holds its sessions. The budget and permanent forces for [illegible]. The grant of $14,000 for building a Court of Appeal in Concepcion.

That law referring to verbal judgment, and that which relates to the prison system.

The trial of Capt. CARRASCO, for the loss of the steamer Chanaral, has terminated in his complete acquittal.

Government has been placing bills on England at 46 and 6 days term, on the funds it possesses there, in virtue of the arrangement made with Peru for the liquidation of the debt due to this Republic. On the account a vast of gold is already full, as a [illegible] quantity has been withdrawn from circulation and deposited in the national treasury. Grain still commands a high price, particularly in the South. Wheat is selling in Concepcion, at $3 in 3 fanegas, and flour is $5 50 a $6 a quintal. The [illegible] has occurred in mining—the year is more prosperous than the former.

It is contemplated to open the Railroad as far as Llanquihue on the 18th September, and the telegraph between Talca and Santiago, at the same time, covering a distance of 300 miles from Valparaiso.

The Chilenos express very unfavorably of the [illegible] established by the Pacific Steam Navigation Company, as [illegible] projected [illegible] of the South. The inhabitants of Valparaiso are about presenting a petition to the British Admiralty, directing its attention to the subject, and requesting some equivalent arrangement.

Peru.

In our Peruvian exchanges we find little to extract respecting either that country or Bolivia. The Revolutionary party still entertain hopes of getting him back, though the prospect is by no means favorable.

The National Convention is still in session, discussing the new constitution, at Chorrillos. Yellow fever had diminished, but the scarcity of food, from an unknown and uncertainty of life, rendered it extremely hazardous to live in Lima.

The contest for landing guano had not yet passed, ELIAS having a prior engagement with the Government, which was not so favorable as the new proposals.

Business in the South of Peru was very dull on account of the revolutionary symptoms there, and also because no confidence was felt in the political state of Bolivia, where General CORDOVA was daily losing ground. The Bolivian army is very much disaffected towards the Administration, and had already got up a conspiracy against CORDOVA.

Bolivia.

Bolivia's Treasury has reached a bad crisis, a serious defalcation having been discovered in the Juanito of Peruvian Bark. About $,500 dollars were short in making the deliveries to the new Director. Gen. BELZU and Senor DE OTERIA, partners of Clayo, CERVEDO & CO., are accused of the theft, and the latter house has declared itself bankrupt. BELZU's share is said to be $700,000. During the first three months of the year, there was extracted from the mines of Core Core 17,[illegible] of copper and 6,[illegible] marcs of silver.

NEW-YORK JAMAICA.

A New Governor to be Appointed.

We have date of the Kingston (Jamaica) papers to the 14th inst., but they contain little news of interest.

The Colonial Standard says that it is confidently believed, in well-informed quarters, that Lord CODRINGTON would be the Governor of Jamaica, in succession to Mr. HENRY BARKLY. His lordship is the eldest son of the Earl of Devon, by the daughter of the second Earl of Effingham. He was born in 1807, and married in 1830, the seventh daughter of Earl Fitzwilliam. His lordship was member for South Devon from 1841 to 1849, and in November, 1852, was appointed Secretary to the Poor Law Board.

The same paper, in an article on mines and mining, has the following paragraph:

Alternately, mining never looked so favorably in Jamaica as at this moment in Jamaica. The attention to which the minds of capitalists in England were in the first instance, projected against the island as a mineral country, have been [illegible] disposed. Our copper is found in lodes as regular as any ever seen in Cornwall or elsewhere. It is not true that nature has at some period of the world's history rained copper ore upon the surface of our island. Our igneous rocks have been divided by the same force that has rent asunder the massive [illegible] of Cornwall, and within the fissures thus formed in Jamaica we have precisely the same metallic matters and identically same state. Nodules are found in the lodes of Cornwall, Devonshire, and other mineral countries. All that is wanted is cash, adequate and capital. If these are not yet quite secured, a great advance, nevertheless, has been made towards their realization; and we are convinced that it needs only truth to render this consummation practically certain.

There will a great many marsh and other fevers in the towns of Falmouth, but the mortality was not great.

The town of Lucea was in a very sickly state, and there was scarcely a house in which there are not two or three cases of fever. The heat, which was oppressive during a part of the day, was succeeded in the evening by heavy showers of rain, which it is said, that in the [illegible] [illegible]

The Jefferson (Mo.) Inquirer publishes a letter from a friend in Pettis County, who says that BUCHANAN's chances there are good. The same paper adds that, from all it can gather from different portions of the State, Col. BENTON will get a much better vote throughout the State than his friends at first anticipated.

The Portland Advertiser publishes a letter from Canton Mills, Me., recording the conversion of E. G. HARROW from the Democratic to the Republican faith. Mr. HARROW has always been a firm Democrat—one of the workers, and one of the most influential of the party in this section. He is a lawyer of distinction, and a member of the Democratic County Committee. He has represented the county in the State Legislature, and was a member of the Committee in the Legislature which reported the resolves instructing our delegates in Congress to oppose the Nebraska measure. He says he has acted honestly, and has not seen any cause for changing his opinion since.

A large meeting of German citizens was held on Monday evening at LUMEN & FLAMME's, Chicago, for the purpose of organizing a political club. Very able addresses were delivered by Dr. HILLGARTNER, of Dubuque and HANNA BAUER, Esq., of this city. The best of feeling was manifested, and a Constitution adopted.

A Fremont Club was formed in Waterbury, Ct., on the 23d inst. Gideon W. BEARDSLEY, Esq., was chosen President with 12 Vice-Presidents and 2 Secretaries. Great enthusiasm was manifested. Gothic Hall was crammed through the entire evening. Between 300 and 400 have already joined the Association and hundreds more intend doing so. An eloquent address was delivered by Judge KELLOGG, which was received with great applause. This place is the great Fillmore centre in the State—as leading citizens early took the field for FILLMORE—but it'd to go. The masses are fully determined to go for FREMONT.

On the 19th instant there was a great Republican demonstration at Hancock, Ohio.

A private letter from Newnan, Ga., dated July 11, says that Mr. FILLMORE's prospects are growing brighter every day in Georgia. The Kansas excitement is less intense. There are, however, a few scattering companies going there every week from Georgia.

The Democrats of Indiana are to have a grand mass Convention on the old Tippecanoe Battle Ground, on the 3d of September. The Democracy of the entire Northwest is to be invited, and the most distinguished Democratic orators in the Union are to be present.

A letter from Columbus in the Cincinnati Commercial, reports that JOHN P. BROWN, Secretary of the Ohio Democratic State Committee, repudiates BUCHANAN, and on Friday evening took active part in a Fillmore meeting in that city.

The Weekly Tribune, a Democratic paper at Manitowoc, Wis., had adopted the Cincinnati Platform and nominations, but now discards them, to make way for the people's ticket and the cause of free Kansas.

The Iowa City Republican says: "An intelligent and observing citizen of this place, who has been spending a week or two in the western part of Iowa, informs us that there is a glorious feeling pervaded among the people. The greatest enthusiasm in behalf of FREMONT was manifested at every point, and a victory such, as has never been witnessed in Iowa is anticipated."

It is stated that a paper in Georgia, the Wilkes County Republican, has come out in favor of FREMONT.

Judge BALLINGER, of Mercer County, Ky., is at present in Iowa, making radical Republican speeches.

A movement is being made to establish a Young America Fremont Club in Portland, Me., to be composed of non-voters. Quite a large number of signatures have already been obtained. All seem determined to do what they can for the good cause, and the boys say there are some things they can do, if they cannot vote.

The Democrats of Pawtucket have organized a Keystone Club, of which Hon. JOHNSON GARDNER is President.

CASSIUS M. CLAY will attend the Young Men's Republican Convention in Dayton, Ohio, on the 30th inst., by invitation.

The Kentucky Whig "would not be surprised if FREMONT's vote in that State would be swelled up to six thousand votes." To this the Newport, Ky., News, (Free Soil,) replies: "Would the Whig be surprised if it should find, in November next, that there are six and twenty thousand good men and true—all Kentuckians—who vote the Republican ticket?"

Judge STUART, a prominent and influential Democrat, of Mansfield, Ohio, has declared for FREMONT and DAYTON.

Lieutenant-Governor KOERNER, of Illinois, is stumping the State for FREMONT. He has heretofore always acted with the Democracy, and was elected to office by the Democrats.

General JOHN W. BOYD, of Walworth, and MASON C. DARLIN, of Fon du Lac, Wis., prominent Democrats, have openly declared for FREMONT.

The Northwestern Democrat, published at Minnesota, hoists the Fremont and Dayton flag. The Democrat has been allied with FRANKLIN PIERCE, and his uphold his Administration.

The Wyandot Pioneer has conversed with several persons from different parts of the county during the past week, and they all say that Fremont stock has an upward tendency. But little has yet been done in the way of organization. After the harvest is fairly over, the Fremonters intend to roll up their sleeves and put the Buchanan through the campaign on the fast time.

A company of twenty-six South Carolinians, for Kansas, have arrived at St. Louis. They are young men, and are armed to the teeth. They are commanded by a gentleman who is recognized as Gen. L. M. AVERY.

A letter from Wilmington, Del., says:

"We have taken steps towards a perfect organization of a Fremont Club here, and we intend to keep the ball rolling. It is the determination of our club to distribute thousands of publications throughout the state."

The New-Orleans Deutsche Zeitung, a German paper, with the largest circulation in the Southern States, goes for FREMONT and DAYTON. The Louisville Anzeiger, German, had the Buchanan flag hoisted, but has taken it down.

The Anzeiger des Nordens, the German paper published in Boston—a paper which has heretofore supported the Pierce Administration—has declared against the Buchanan ticket, and come out in support of the Philadelphia nomination and platform. Last Saturday it put the names of FREMONT and DAYTON at the head of its columns.

The Courier, a German paper published at Cleveland, Ohio, for the benefit of the Buchaniers, having stopped for want of breath, the Cincinnati Volksfreund is now the only German daily in Ohio that swears by BUCHANAN.

In Galena, Ills., a new Fremont paper has just appeared in the Swedish language. There are now 100,000 Swedes in the Northwest, and this is their first political paper.

At a meeting of Americans at Lagrange, Mo., last week, it was unanimously resolved to have an old-fashioned, rousing barbecue, in that city, on the 1st of August, and a grand torchlight procession and mass meeting at night. A committee of thirty gentlemen, from country and town, were appointed to procure provisions and superintend the general management of the barbecue and meeting. A committee, finance and corresponding Committees, and [illegible] were appointed.

Another accession to the Fremont Press is reported. The Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegraph, has hoisted the flag of FREMONT and DAYTON. This paper is regarded as the organ of the State Administration, and its course has been anxiously watched by the friends of both FILLMORE and FREMONT. In giving its reasons for hoisting the Republican ticket, the [illegible]

A meeting was held in Dobbs' Ferry, Westchester County, on Wednesday evening, July 23d, for the purpose of organizing a Fremont Club in the Second Election District of the town of Greenburgh, comprising the villages of Irvington, Dobbs' Ferry, Hastings and ARDSLEY. There was great enthusiasm, and much spirit was manifested for the cause of free labor and free speech. A very able address was then made by Hon. F. W. WATERBURY. At the conclusion of the speech, which was well received and repeatedly cheered, a large number of those present came forward and enrolled their names as members of the club. A Committee was appointed to prepare a declaration of principles and a code of laws for the government of the club, and report at the next meeting. The following gentlemen were elected as permanent officers of the Club: M. M. COSTING, President; C. W. TAPPAN, G. COSTING, C. T. PAYNE, Vice-Presidents; C. M. GUERNSEY, Secretary; W. H. HALL, Treasurer. The following Executive Committee was appointed by the President: T. L. ROBINSON, W. A. HALL, F. W. WATERBURY, S. W. WOODWARD. After which the meeting adjourned to meet Wednesday, August 6, at the same place.

The Richmond Whig appeals to the South to support FILLMORE in the following language:

"Southern men and patriots, the crisis demands your best services; and we hope not to contribute to the success of Seward and Black Republicanism by throwing away your votes upon BUCHANAN, who, we very believe, is not in the contest at all. FILLMORE and FREMONT are virtually the only candidates now before the people. If you wish to put down the latter, come up like men to the aid of the former, and all will be well!"

WM. J. PATTERSON, Esq., of the Parkville Luminary, who is now lecturing in Massachusetts on Kansas affairs, in behalf of the fund for the aid of the people of Kansas, has been invited to address the Fremont Club in Marlborough on the issue in the campaign and the candidates for the Presidency.

In a letter to the Portland Advertiser is the following paragraph:

"I will only add that the cause of FREMONT and DAYTON is strengthening gloriously as I learn, the clamors being wide awake to the position of the so-called Democratic Party, and coming over in multitudes to help the cause of Freedom and FREMONT."

The Pensacola, Fla., Gazette of the 12th instant has raised at its masthead the names of FILLMORE and DONELSON, and says it intends to do battle in the same. It has hitherto been neutral.

The Washington correspondent of the Atlas has the following in regard to the Fillmore movement in Indiana:

"A Fillmore electoral ticket was nominated last week in Indiana. It is known here that certainly four of the gentlemen nominated are supporters of Gen. FILLMORE. A representative from Indiana received a letter from one of these, written on the very day of this nomination, denouncing the Fillmore movement as a fraud, declaring in favor of FREMONT, and expressing a preference for even BUCHANAN as against FILLMORE."

The Pittsburg Gazette of the 25th instant, has private advices from Somerset County, Penn., which assert that the great mass of the opposition in that county will support FREMONT cordially.

It has been suggested that a Convention of all the New-England States in favor of FREMONT and DAYTON, be held in Boston next month.

The Savannah (Ga.) Intelligencer, hitherto a neutral paper, has come out in favor Colonel BARNES and has run up the whole State ticket.

The Cincinnati Times gives an account of a grand American Barbecue at Union, Boone County, Ky. The crowd in attendance was very large. Speeches were made by JOHN W. MERRIFIELD, Esq., of Covington; Col. T. L. JONES, of Newport; E. F. NORTON, of Cincinnati, WM. B. RAWITH, of Williamstown, and Major H. B. BARNES, of Covington.

The Lexington Citizen, (American,) speaking of the contest for Governor, in the State of Missouri, says:

"Of the numerical strength of the three parties into which the people are divided, neither we nor any other man can [illegible] [illegible] know enough to say, without reasonable doubt, that without the fusion of the two wings of the Democracy, and the withdrawal of Mr. POLK from the contest, that Ewing's election is certain. The withdrawal of Bowlin would benefit Ewing quite as much as it would profit Mr. POLK. To unite the interests of these two gentlemen at this late day is impossible, and Mr. Bowlin's duty demands it to leap the 'deep ditch' and 'climb the high wall,' and come over to the ranks of FREMONT. The old Senator has too much self-love to make any advances towards the 'rottens,' and, notwithstanding his opposition to the American Party, he prefers even Americans to the Antics. Indeed even the two parties have so vilified and abused each other, that, without sacrifice of everything like moral or political principle, they cannot by any possibility unite."

The St. Louis Republican is authorized to offer the following bet on the next Presidential election: Twenty-five hundred dollars worth of property (which is improved and within the city limits) against one thousand dollars, that FILLMORE will not get the following States: Louisiana, Kentucky, and Tennessee. The bet to be entire, and play or pay.

Mr. TAUSTEN POLK, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Missouri, reached St. Louis on the 22d inst., from a circuit in which he is said to have been remarkably well received wherever he went. His repose was short, as he left the same evening for the southeastern part of the State, where he will remain until the election is over.

Mr. Hamlin's Acceptance.

By the following correspondence, published in the Portland Advertiser, it will be seen that Mr. HAMLIN accepts the nomination for Governor tendered him by the Convention recently held in that city.

BATH, July 9, 1856.

Hon. Freeman H. Morse, U. S. C.

DEAR SIR: At a very large and enthusiastic Republican Convention, convened at Portland on the 8th inst., for the purpose of nominating a candidate, to be supported for Governor by all who oppose the present State and national administrations, you were unanimously and enthusiastically nominated for the office.

The call for the Convention extended to all "citizens of Maine, without distinction of party, and regardless of former differences of opinion, who are opposed to the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, to the anarchical and dangerous doctrines of the Cincinnati platform, to the extension of Slavery in the Territories of the United States, in favor of freedom in Kansas, of the preservation of the Union and of restoring the Government to the principles and policy of WASHINGTON and JEFFERSON."

Under this patriotic call nearly twice hundred delegates assembled, besides a large multitude of warmly interested and sympathizing citizens from all parts of our State. A platform was adopted in harmony with the call, to which I ask leave to direct your attention.

By a vote of the Convention it was made my pleasing duty to notify you of your nomination and ask your acceptance thereof. Although it was your desire to avoid the post to which the Republicans of Maine have called you, no other nomination would have satisfied the Convention. The current of feeling can so strongly in one direction that an attempt to turn it into other channels would not have been wise or expedient. I trust, therefore, in this perilous crisis of our country's history, you will bow to the mandates of the people, and permit us to go into the great conflict for freedom with your name upon our banner.

Very sincerely, yours, &c.,

FREEMAN H. MORSE,
President of the Convention.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, July 19, 1856.

DEAR SIR: Your favor of the 9th inst., informing me, officially, that I have been nominated as a candidate for the office of Governor of Maine, by a Convention which assembled at Portland on the 8th inst., in pursuance to a call to "all citizens of Maine, without distinction of party, and regardless of former differences of opinion, who are opposed to the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, to the anarchical and dangerous doctrines of the Cincinnati Platform, to the extension of Slavery into the Territories of the United States, in favor of Freedom in Kansas, of the preservation of the Union, and of restoring the Government to the principles and policy of WASHINGTON and JEFFERSON," was duly received.

You say truly, that it was my desire to avoid the post assigned me. Such was the fact, as you well know. I believed I might render the cause more efficient service,—a cause which in my judgment, the work is more than half accomplished. Not [illegible] Mr. FILLMORE in their unprincipled [illegible] both FREMONT and FILLMORE men earnestly desire, and will do, anything for a common defeat of BUCHANAN, [illegible] the Nebraska measure, and the political [illegible] but to reflect the views of the people, such measures and policy will be the results of our labors.

MERRIFIELD, Esq., of Covington; Col. T. L. JONES, of Newport; E. F. NORTON, of Cincinnati, WM. B. RAWITH, of Williamstown, and Major H. B. BARNES, of Covington.

The Lexington Citizen, (American,) speaking of the contest for Governor, in the State of Missouri, says:

"Of the numerical strength of the three parties into which the people are divided, neither we nor any other man can [illegible] [illegible] know enough to say, without reasonable doubt, that without the fusion of the two wings of the Democracy, and the withdrawal of Mr. POLK from the contest, that Ewing's election is certain. The withdrawal of Bowlin would benefit Ewing quite as much as it would profit Mr. POLK. To unite the interests of these two gentlemen at this late day is impossible, and Mr. Bowlin's duty demands it to leap the 'deep ditch' and 'climb the high wall,' and come over to the ranks of FREMONT. The old Senator has too much self-love to make any advances towards the 'rottens,' and, notwithstanding his opposition to the American Party, he prefers even Americans to the Antics. Indeed even the two parties have so vilified and abused each other, that, without sacrifice of everything like moral or political principle, they cannot by any possibility unite."

The St. Louis Republican is authorized to offer the following bet on the next Presidential election: Twenty-five hundred dollars worth of property (which is improved and within the city limits) against one thousand dollars, that FILLMORE will not get the following States: Louisiana, Kentucky, and Tennessee. The bet to be entire, and play or pay.

Mr. TAUSTEN POLK, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Missouri, reached St. Louis on the 22d inst., from a circuit in which he is said to have been remarkably well received wherever he went. His repose was short, as he left the same evening for the southeastern part of the State, where he will remain until the election is over.

Mr. Hamlin's Acceptance.

By the following correspondence, published in the Portland Advertiser, it will be seen that Mr. HAMLIN accepts the nomination for Governor tendered him by the Convention recently held in that city.

BATH, July 9, 1856.

Hon. Freeman H. Morse, U. S. C.

DEAR SIR: At a very large and enthusiastic Republican Convention, convened at Portland on the 8th inst., for the purpose of nominating a candidate, to be supported for Governor by all who oppose the present State and national administrations, you were unanimously and enthusiastically nominated for the office.

The call for the Convention extended to all "citizens of Maine, without distinction of party, and regardless of former differences of opinion, who are opposed to the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, to the anarchical and dangerous doctrines of the Cincinnati platform, to the extension of Slavery into the Territories of the United States, in favor of freedom in Kansas, of the preservation of the Union and of restoring the Government to the principles and policy of WASHINGTON and JEFFERSON."

Under this patriotic call nearly twice hundred delegates assembled, besides a large multitude of warmly interested and sympathizing citizens from all parts of our State. A platform was adopted in harmony with the call, to which I ask leave to direct your attention.

By a vote of the Convention it was made my pleasing duty to notify you of your nomination and ask your acceptance thereof. Although it was your desire to avoid the post to which the Republicans of Maine have called you, no other nomination would have satisfied the Convention. The current of feeling can so strongly in one direction that an attempt to turn it into other channels would not have been wise or expedient. I trust, therefore, in this perilous crisis of our country's history, you will bow to the mandates of the people, and permit us to go into the great conflict for freedom with your name upon our banner.

Very sincerely, yours, &c.,

FREEMAN H. MORSE,
President of the Convention.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, July 19, 1856.

DEAR SIR: Your favor of the 9th inst., informing me, officially, that I have been nominated as a candidate for the office of Governor of Maine, by a Convention which assembled at Portland on the 8th inst., in pursuance to a call to "all citizens of Maine, without distinction of party, and regardless of former differences of opinion, who are opposed to the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, to the anarchical and dangerous doctrines of the Cincinnati Platform, to the extension of Slavery into the Territories of the United States, in favor of Freedom in Kansas, of the preservation of the Union, and of restoring the Government to the principles and policy of WASHINGTON and JEFFERSON," was duly received.

You say truly, that it was my desire to avoid the post assigned me. Such was the fact, as you well know. I believed I might render the cause more efficient service,—a cause which in my judgment, the work is more than half accomplished. Not [illegible]

Some of our City readers are ignorant of the fact that President Pierce, Postmaster-General Campbell, and Governor McCormick, form a Commission for the purpose of selecting sites for United States Courts and Post-Offices in different cities of the United States. Congress only awaits their report to make such appropriation as may be necessary to purchase the property fixed upon, and it is more than probable that such a report will be presented before the expiration of the present session of Congress.

We have just received intelligence, from a sufficiently direct source, that the decision of the Commissioners, as far as the City of New-York is concerned, is very nearly made, and it will not much surprise those who know Gen. Pierce and his Cabinet to be informed that the place of their choice is St. John's Park. It would probably have created equally little astonishment if Ninety-fourth-street, Harlem, or any locality this side of Westchester County, had been his upon; but any wave of emotion in this respect would have been, and will be, amply made up by indignation.

It is stated that the sum of $850,000 has been already offered for St. John's Park, to the Vestry of Trinity Church, but, at a meeting held to consider the value of the square, it was considered worth a million, and Government has been duly informed that, unless they are prepared to throw away this sum, they must go somewhere else. So small a matter as $150,000 will not stand in the way of the purchase, backed, as it is said to be, not only by property-holders on St. John's Park, but also by those on Hudson, White, and Hudson streets, who are abundantly willing to be enriched at the expense of the Government.

Notwithstanding the desire of speculators and the willingness of Governments to put the New-York Post-Office out of the reach of nine-tenths of those persons in the City to whom letters are directed, we have no idea that the scheme will be attended with success. The citizens of New-York will simply not permit it. The business part of the City of New-York is almost entirely below Chambers-street. Merchants, bankers and others meet from all parts of the Island in the square mile which is bounded by that street and the East and North Rivers, and receive not only the letters addressed to themselves, but also to their families, who compose the majority of the residents in remoter parts of the metropolis. Business men desire to have access to the Post-Office within a few moments of the closing the mails, to do which it is absolutely requisite that it should be within a short distance. St. John's Park is remote from every locality where letters are numerously received. It is the centre of that vast western desert of houses without population, in which property-holders are prepared to resort to any and every expedient to raise the value of their lots and houses. Is it near no avenue of business, no place of resort, and its final selection by the Commissioners would necessitate the removal of Wall-street, Pearl-street, South-street, and their tributaries, to another part of the City. We are told that Democratic merchants of influence and standing have already made representations at Washington in opposition to the scheme of the Commissioners, which will procure its reconsideration, and the choice of a better site. It is well that it is so. An outcry would otherwise arise from the united voice of the Metropolis, which not even the Administration of Gen. Pierce, accustomed as it is to reprobation of its acts, could either withstand or endure.

The site now to be selected for the permanent location of a Post-Office should be the best in the City. No man who examines the subject with any care, and who is not biased by pecuniary interests, can doubt that the lower angle of the Park, opposite the Astor House, is the spot where the Post Office should be located. Beekman-street must inevitably be carried across the Park ere long. The business which the widening of that street has created will compel its extension. When that shall have been done, a tract of ground will remain just large enough for a good Post-Office, accessible on every side, and which every railroad, omnibus and carriage route in the City must pass. For convenience, accessibility and general fitness there is no other place in the City half so good as this:—and the lease, or purchase, of it from the City Government could be effected for half what St. John's Park is likely to cost.

The truth is, there is but little hope that, in the selection of a site, any special regard will be paid to the interests of the City or the convenience of its inhabitants. Private speculation will control the whole thing. Office-holders, members of Congress, outside schemers and partisan Committees all want money out of any selection that may be made:—and the chances are that the site will be chosen from which these parties can realize the most. As the worst location can afford to pay the highest, the chances, therefore, are strongly in favor of its selection.

Ex-Gov. Hunt Again.

A few days since a column of this paper contained an extract from the Fishkill Standard, a Know-Nothing sheet which referred to Ex-Gov. Hunt's partiality for Fillmore-ism. The simple comment given by this paper, was "To this complexion hath it come at last." The Commercial Advertiser thereupon scored the Know-Nothing organ for its impudence and concluded with this sentence: "We are sure that he (Ex-Gov. H.) neither is nor is likely to become a member of the Know-Nothing Order."

But the last issue of the Know-Nothing organ in question speaks out plainly and unceremoniously. Referring to the Times, it adds:

"If that would-be leading journal was not so far behind the age, it might have known that the Americans of Washington Hunt was one of the first State long before it, and also knew they would not [illegible] to have him."

There has evidently been another back-parlor initiation, a la Sarsaparilla; and he who last Summer objected to Republican fusion as undignified, has this Summer fraternized with the Know-Nothing Fillmorites as a "dead duck," "lame sectarian" in dark-lantern sunsets. "To this complexion hath it come at last!"

Post-Office on St. John's Park.

Some of our City readers are ignorant of the fact that President Pierce, Postmaster-General Campbell, and Governor McCormick, form a Commission for the purpose of selecting sites for United States Courts and Post-Offices in different cities of the United States. Congress only awaits their report to make such appropriation as may be necessary to purchase the property fixed upon, and it is more than probable that such a report will be presented before the expiration of the present session of Congress.

As at times like the present, when property-holders are justly filled with consternation at the annually increasing amount of their taxbills, it becomes an especial duty to examine into the causes which have raised the levy over three hundred per cent. within a few years, and, as far as possible, to suggest remedies for the evil. Fortunately materials are not wanting. Over $7,000,000 are demanded by the Board of Supervisors for the expenses of the City and County of New-York for the year 1855. Of this enormous sum, above $1,000,000 are demanded—an increase since 1853 of nearly $300,000—on account of Common Schools. The proper education of the rising generation is a subject, undoubtedly, of paramount importance, and no good citizen will grudge the amount he is obliged to contribute for so excellent a purpose, provided the guarantee can be afforded that the moneys appropriated are expended with economy, wisdom and prudence. There are, however, abundant reasons for supposing that this is not the case;—that, on the contrary, the amendments to the laws on Common Schools which passed the New-York Legislature on the 21st March, 1854, have opened a door to grave abuses, of a highly corrupting tendency, and which call for speedy reconsideration and change.

In each Ward of the City of New-York, there are, according to the present law, two School Commissioners, two Inspectors and eight Trustees. The Commissioners and Inspectors retain their places for two years and the Trustees for four years, and their tenure of office is so regulated that at every general election a Commissioner, an Inspector and two Trustees are elected. The twelve individuals together constitute the local Board of each Ward and are vested with certain distinct, independent powers which admit of few checks beyond their own discretion. The Ward Trustees possess corporative power to hold the personal property which may be vested in or transferred to them for school purposes; they are endowed with the power of regulating all the details connected with property, repairs and superintendence in their districts, with no other duty towards the Board of Education than transmitting to it, once a year, a record of their proceedings verified by oath. Each local Board nominates its own teachers, (whose salary is not limited or regulated by law,) and has also the power of expending $200 or other as may be deemed requisite by itself (!) for repairs, &c. There thus exists, within the limits of the City of New-York, TWENTY-TWO INDEPENDENT CORPORATIONS, each enjoying extensive and distinct privileges, with no other check upon their exercise than the possibility of an upright majority, able to add an almost indefinite amount to the City taxes, and called upon but once a year to account for their actions. There are many upright individuals in the different Boards—some of them zealous in promoting education among the young, and zealous of the honor of the City—but it is impossible, under such a state of things, that corruption should not creep in, and that property-holders should not be the sufferers by it. A proof of what extent corruption has already made inroads in some of the Boards, is afforded by the fact that, limited as the supervisory powers of the Board of Education are, the most intense jealousy exists with regard to the use or the feeble control they sometimes endeavor to exercise. The proceedings of the Board of Education frequently consist of mere contests of the Ward representatives for improperly claimed money or patronage, and such local schemes are generally pushed through with success, because other members do not dare to jeopardize plans of their own by opposing those of their colleagues.

The Board of Education is composed of the School Commissioners of the respective Wards of the City, and possesses the privileges of a Corporation. They have power to hold such real and personal property as may be devised to it, for purposes of education in the City; to appoint a City Superintendent of Common Schools, with assistants and a superintendent of school buildings, (all of these gentlemen to be compensated as they may designate;) to establish, visit, and examine schools; to continue the Free Academies; to use and control actual, private new, and sell useless, property; to apportion all the school moneys that shall have been raised for the purpose of meeting the current annual expenses of public instruction, with the duty of filing, every April, a detailed copy of such apportionment with the Chamberlain of the City. Also, to transmit, annually, to the Common Council of New-York, and to the Secretary of the Board of Regents of the University of New-York, a full and specific report concerning the Free Academies; and to the Superintendent of Common Schools, and to the Common Council, a report of the whole number of schools in the City and county, with date of existence, expense, number and color of children, and other information that may be required by the City Superintendent. The City and Assistant Superintendents of Schools are subject to and may be removed by the Board. They hold their office for two years. It is the duty of the Superintendent to visit every school, under the charge of the Board, at least once a year, and upon him devolves the responsibility concerning the capability of teachers, whom he is obliged to examine and classify, and, if disqualified for their positions, remove.

It is clear, from this statement, that the wisdom of past legislation with respect to the mere internal management of Schools has been retained. It is equally evident that securities for a proper management of the financial affairs of our Common Schools are decidedly wanting. Mismanagement must be the necessary consequence of a law which permits the easiest, by twenty-two uncontrolled corporations, of $200 of the public money, as frequently as they see fit. The limit of $200 by law was probably intended as an annual one; but it is not so expressed, and consequently is not so interpreted. The Board of Education are literally compelled, as the statute stands, to pay $200 just so often as the local Boards can find a plausible pretext for presenting a separate bill. The President of the Board of Education (at present Mr. Anthony H. Green, a gentleman in every respect fitted for, and worthy of, the responsible position he holds) stands in the same position to the local Boards that the Comptroller does to the City. If he deems a bill fraudulent, he may refuse to pay it; but as he is elected by the Board of Education, and is merely their exponent, he must take their judgment upon it. The members of the Board, made up of local officers, with separate interests, of course take care of each other in order to help themselves. So, too, with regard to the salaries of teachers. As no limit exists to their compensation by law, a rivalry of excess is created, which Ward shall pay the highest. It is right that good teachers should be liberally paid, but not on such a principle. A proper system should be adopted, on an equitable and equal scale, so that while the teacher is provided for according to his ability, the City should not be made to suffer by the favoritism of the local officers.

Much might be said concerning the want of care which has been lately manifested in the selection of sites for Schools, as it is too evident that private interests and the speculative views of individuals have sometimes been paid more attention to than the convenience of localities and distance from Schools already established. Abuse in this respect is a necessary corollary of the evils we have already pointed out. An entire revision of the law, as amended in 1854, is requisite in order to check at the source encroachments upon the City treasury, which are annually receiving, and must augment still further, if a quarter of a hundred drains from the public purse are permitted for one item in the list of yearly taxes.

Congressional Duels.

The recent escapades of Mr. Brooks of South Carolina have given an unusual degree of interest to the subject of dueling, and revived the recollections of some of the more celebrated Congressional affairs of honor. Duels have been fought by members of Congress from the very commencement of our existence as a nation, but these affairs have been much less frequent than is generally supposed to be the case. In fact all of the Congressional challenges that have been sent from the meeting of the first Congress in Philadelphia down to the affair between Brooks and Burlingame, do not exceed twenty-five in number, not half so many as have been fought by members of the British Parliament. These are most remarkable facts, and they show how absurdly unjust are the imputations and charges of the English press on the state of civilization in this country, as exhibited in our National Legislature. The records will prove that there has been less of personal violence, and fewer encounters in our Congress than there have been in Parliament, during the same number of years, since the Declaration of our Independence.

The first duel by a member of Congress on record was that between Button Gwinnett and Jamieland McIntosh, in 1777. They were both of the State of Georgia, though Gwinnett only was a member of Congress. He was a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and his antagonist was an officer of the Army. The dispute was of a personal nature, and the duel can hardly be called a Congressional encounter, as it did not grow out of any act of either party connected with politics.

The next affair of honor in which a member of Congress was implicated occurred in 1797, and was strictly Congressional, as it was occasioned by words spoken in debate. The parties were Thomas Blount, representative from North Carolina, and Judge Thatcher, from Massachusetts. The challenger was Blount, who took offence at a verbal criticism of an expression he used, by Thatcher, who, on receiving the invitation to fight, declined giving an answer until he could write to his wife and obtain her consent; and there the matter dropped. Seven years afterwards, in 1804, Senator Jackson, of Georgia, was wounded in a duel with Colonel Watkins; the cause of the duel was political, but not a Congressional quarrel. In the year previous, Jonathan Dayton, a Senator from New-Jersey, sent a challenge to Dr Witt Clinton, then a Senator from New-York, on account of an offensive remark of the latter in a debate, for which he made an apology that was read in the Senate.

In the year 1819 General Mason, a Senator from Virginia, was killed in a duel by his relative, McCarty, also a Virginian; but though the cause of the duel was political it did not originate in Congress.

The next affair of honor in which a member of Congress was a party, was the celebrated affair of McDuffie, of South Carolina, and Col. Cummings, of Georgia, which came off in the year 1822. The famous affair between Henry Clay and John Randolph occurred four years after the last, in 1826. The next year Mr. Varnum, an ex-member of Congress from North Carolina, was killed in a duel by Mr. Carson, a member from the same State. Ten years afterwards, in 1837, Mr. Dromgoole, a member of Congress from Virginia, was mortally wounded in a duel with Mr. Dugan, of the same State. In 1838 the still freshly remembered meeting took place between Jonathan Cilley, of Maine, and William J. Graves, of Kentucky, both members of Congress, in which the former was killed. This tragical affair created a feeling in the public mind so repugnant to the duello that it was not until the year 1851 that another affair of honor grew out of a Congressional quarrel when Mr. Stanley of North Carolina, and Mr. Isom of Alabama, met and exchanged shots without doing each other any personal injury, and then explained and became friends. Two years afterwards Mr. Isom was the second of Senator Gwin, of California, who fought with Mr. McCorkle, a representative of the same State. Though members of Congress, the duel grew out of expressions used by one of the parties at a race-course in California, where the meeting took place.

In 1854 the affair between Mr. Cutting of this City and Mr. Emmerson, the Democratic candidate for the Vice-Presidency, created, in which no meeting took place from the difficulty of finding which party had given the challenge.

The new affair of the kind that occurred is the one which now engrosses the public attention, and which, taken in all its aspects, is certainly the most remarkable and the least creditable to one of the parties of all the affairs of honor in which members of Congress have been engaged, of which we have any knowledge.

The list of Congressional duels is, by no means a formidable one; and, considering the virulence with which our partisan quarrels have been conducted, and the strong sectional feelings which have always existed among the members of our National Legislature, it is extremely meagre and favorable to the moral character of our people. During the past eighty years there have been far few hostile meetings between our leading politicians, while there has hardly been an eminent British statesman who has not been engaged in a duel. Pitt, Canning, Fox, Curran, O'Connell, Peel, Disraeli, Castlereagh, and many more of the leading statesmen of England, have had their little affairs of honor; but our eminent public men have been singularly free from such degrading encounters.

The duello is not likely to be made more popular by the conduct of Mr. Brooks, whose latest escapade is pretty well exposed by the statement of Mr. Campbell, which we publish this morning.

All Hot.

Drop an iceberg into the crater of Popocatepetl, fill up with claret, and out of the West India islands to sweeten and flavor; then hand us the tower at Pisa to suck the liquid through, and you will oblige us considerably. Nothing less than this can cool our cracking throat, we do assure you.

There is a thermometer hanging over this way. We have taken the trouble of suspending it opposite a picture of the Arctic regions, and keep it boy continually holding an umbrella over its head—still it stands several thousand degrees above white heat. The thin red column of colored alcohol glows like the essence of fire; rays of flame seem to burst from the little globe at the bottom, and burn into our brain. Whatever the heat may be, that thermometer is always hotter. It is a demon thermometer, and is doubtless filled with some charmed blood gathered from the veins of an attorney at the Witches' Sabbath.

Nothing was ever known like it, as an Irishman would say, before or since. The paving-stones are calcined, and the ghost of the Lime-Kiln man is to be seen dimly making them into mortar. Everybody who dares to venture out obtains an excellent idea of the ordeal of walking over red hot ploughshares. An ancient writer, whose name has not descended to us, alludes to the chronographic activity of a cat when placed upon "a hot griddle," (properly "gridiron;") well, it can scarcely surpass the involuntary exercises of some young monkeys, who with their soled shoes we passed along the burning sheet outside our domicile, a few moments since. In our compassion we could not help wishing that they had the history of Nabucodonosor's retreat from Babylon to read as they went along. We ourselves know not what species of body we can at this moment be properly stated to be, whether liquid, fluid or gelatinous. We write this on water-proof paper, with our chair in a bath tub, from which there is an escape-pipe leading into the yard. If we were at this moment to be suddenly iced, we feel convinced that it would be possible to run us into a mould, flavor us with vanilla, and put us on a supper table. Perhaps—ecstatic thought!—perhaps even the loveliest of her sex might take a spoonfull of us to cool her beautiful but fevered lips!

There is an apricot tree outside our window. It is covered with amber fruit, that look, as they cling to the ends of the branches, like the lovely but expensive pipe-mouth pieces which Mr. Odaryan used to have for sale in the palmy days of the Turkish Kahve. The apricots are not yet ripe, and they seem to enjoy the heat. Why are we not an unripe apricot?

There is an infernous dog, with long hair, lying down over the way, on the very hottest flagstone in the whole street. He sleeps calmly, while the relentless sun beats full upon him. He absolutely basks; basks in a heat that is reducing the intelligent population of this City into syrup! He is not obliged to put on five shirts a day. His hair does not resemble the dripping wool of Knaresborough. He is not reduced to the state of those hydraulic statues of gods at Versailles, who discharge streams of water from the tips of their fingers, and some of the other extremities. We recognize for the first time the superiority of fur, and begin to regret that the Quadrupeds ever thought it worth while to improve their offspring.

Hark! A military company with a brass band and a big drum! If there is anything in the world hotter than the noise of a drum, we will forfeit our next glass of iced Catawba. It suggests all sorts of horrible blazing things—scarlet, gunpowder, and the unimaginable exertion of fighting. Fancy a battle in such weather as this! In what a dilemma would one be placed! Either to stand still and be shot with a warm bullet, or thrust through with a sword at a high degree of temperature, or be obliged to have recourse to the terrible alternative of running to get out of the way. Catharine of Russia, when she built her ice palace on the Neva, had a cannon hewn out of ice, out of which an icy ball was fired. It is with weapons such as these that battles in Summer should be conducted. One might even die very coolly by such refrigerative missiles. Apropos of fighting, those persons who hate us, and have been, up to the present, afraid to show it, had better call on us while in our present prostrate state; we are incapable of resistance, and the most we should be able to do would be to act like Uncle Toby's damp uncle, old Kubbkbern, who, when the Knight struck at him, merely spattered all over his assailant in the form of spray. All the protection our antagonist would need would be a water-proof suit and an umbrella.

Talk of the desert, "Howadji" Taylor! Murmur of the basking Nile, "Howadji" Curtis! Neither the golden sands nor the lotus-scented river ever saw a more ruthless sun than this one that pours down upon New-York. All we wonder at is that there are no lions in Broadway, or palms in Union-square.

A ring at our door-bell, and an announcement by our disolving servant that Professor Meriam wishes to see us. What! A human thermometer in the same room with us! A man who, if he put his finger down our throat, would register our temperature somewhere on his waistcoat! A being whose talk is of thunder and electric matter, and dreadful red-hot comets! Why, his presence would complete our dissolution. Say we are out, and get a sponge; there is our leg tingling over the carpet. There, bring us Linn's Law, in order that we may pour over its pages!

☞ Among the "Old-Line Whigs" who have recently taken the pest of duty for Fremont and Dayton, is Gen. Wm. Hall, who in accepting the position of Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Fremont and Dayton Central Union of this City, made a neat speech, showing it to be the duty of all old-liners to cast inferior and vetoes where they would not to throw away.

Tight Rope Evolutions terminate.

Bowery Theatre.—Mr. Rice's Burlesque, whose drama of the "Pirates of the Mississippi" has been received with unbounded applause, will be played tonight, together with the burlesque of "Bluebeard."

National Theatre.—These popular pieces, the "Attic," "Yankee Jack," the "Mississippi Gulf," the "Red Gauntlet," "White Squaw," and the "Soldiers and Their Dogs."

Barnum's Museum.—Wonders, the Wizard and Demonologist, continues to give his amusing entertainments, improving attractions and meeting with success in attracting large and delighted audiences, eminently expert and clever.

Laurent's Concert Hall.—Mr. Laurent announces that this will positively be his last night in the City. Those who have not seen his meritorious artistic talents, should certainly avail themselves of this last opportunity. Several new pieces have been added recently.

A Presentation at Port Chester.

Friday evening, the employees, [illegible] in number, of the Mason Ironworks, proprietors of the Eagle Foundery, Port Chester, presented to each of their employers a magnificent silver pitcher, having appropriate inscriptions. Mr. Bennett, the Clerk to the foundery, in presenting the pitcher made a neat speech in behalf of his fellow workmen. Mr. Wm. Aspinwall, the senior member of the firm responded. He stated that the Eagle Foundery had now been in successful operation for [illegible] years, and that a number of the workmen who commenced with them still remained in their employ, a fact which speaks volumes in their favor. Speeches were made by Messrs. Ancrum and [illegible] Mason, after which the company proceeded to a refreshment, a German glee club, composed of workmen in the foundery, enlivened the occasion with a number of pieces.

The following is the presentation address:

Respected Aspinwall Mason:—Gentlemen: We, the workmen employed by you in the Eagle Foundery, have thought proper to embrace the occasion of your entering on and attainment to your [illegible] of your anniversary, to express our sentiments of the warm interest you ever take in all that appertains to our welfare. Gentlemen, we are proud to acknowledge that we are employed by men who constitute so much to the prosperity of this growing village; who have been always ready to relieve the indigent, and succor the distressed; who have encouraged and aided us always ready to extend a helping hand to the honest laborer and mechanic.

We therefore hope your acceptance of these pitchers as a very slight token of our esteem, and we trust that the two good gentlemen, who are equally by nature and by adoption, Masons, will feel that the prosperity of Eagle Foundery will be vested in the Masons' fraternity, and that interesting occasion assumes all the more interest.

Assured that while these pitchers shall [illegible] under your care will share that esteem we have worn for the working men ever since we have been working years. In behalf of the workmen we have the honor to be, Respectfully, Your humble servants,

E. G. BLAKELEY,
G. A. DOWNS,
J. VALENTINE,
} Committee.

Port-Chester, July 24, 1856.

Mr. Aspinwall responded as follows:

Gentlemen: Those tokens of esteem which you have thought proper to present to me on this occasion, coupled with myself, I receive with the greatest pleasure and with heartfelt gratitude, and only regret it is in a very humble degree, yet, more so because it comes from our workingmen, in all parts where to many men this day is a day of rest, but to many men it is a day of toil, and I trust that many all come forward and help to contribute such a testimonial.

It will be sixteen years next September, since we commenced business, and we have been, with, or from, the commencement, a great number of you for a number of years. Twenty-four years ago I was apprenticed to a machinist, and I have served and your grandfathers, many of you, and I trust you will always remember, I will, as I have in my time served Army and Navy Officers, to will, as I have in my time served Navy Officers, to will, as I have in my time served Army and Navy Officers, to will, as I have in my time served [illegible] of

Truly, yours, WM. S. ARMSTRONG, Jr.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JULES MUMM & CO.'S CHAMPAGNES.

By an arrangement with the House of MESSRS. J. G. & J. SOEST, of New-York, the undersigned now imports these famous Wines, viz.:

IMPERIAL, CABINET AND VERZENAY,

direct from Rheims and is enabled to offer them to his patrons and the public upon the most favorable terms. As there are two brands of Champagne sold in the market of the same name, without interfering with other interests, it seems to be proper to state that the Mumm's Wines were first introduced to the market by the Messrs. Soest, in the year 1852, that these Wines obtained great celebrity here, and that upon the division of the firm at Rheims on the 1st of January, 1853, by which two houses were formed, namely: Jules Mumm & Co., and G. H. Mumm & Co., the house first named resumed the original establishment, and to this time has maintained, as the representative of the Mumm's Wines, by exporting only those of the most approved quality.

By a careful examination of the best wines in the market, aided by the experience and advice of able judges, the undersigned selected from the different brands,

THE CHAMPAGNE WINES OF JULES MUMM & CO.,

as the drinkable wine of all the rest. For purity, delicacy of flavor, and uniform quality, these Champagnes are recommended with a full assurance of their being the best Wines in the market. FRED. S. COZZENS,

Importer, No. 78 Warren-st., New-York.

G. H. MUMM & CO.'S CHAMPAGNE WINES.

On the principle of the "more the merrier," the undersigned is pleased to state that he is permitted by the kindness of Frederick DuBary, Esq., the well known Agent in this country of the above celebrated House, to offer for sale the following brands of their Champagne Wines:

THE VIN GERMANT OR GORDON ROUGE,
THE IMPERIAL, THE CABINET,
THE VERZENAY,
AND
THE DRY VERZENAY.

The public will please take notice that we do not dispute the "Vin Germant" by the "Red Ribbon" Wine, thereby quenching their knowledge of the French language, as our brother merchant has seen fit to do; but they may rest assured that this is the only particular in which we shall differ, as we offer, and at our arrangements fully justify us in doing, these celebrated and delicately-flavored Champagnes, in lots to suit purchasers, on most favorable terms, with the hearty concurrence and good wishes of the "Master Cellarman and the successful and lady who presides over the bottle washers."

[illegible]

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

An article appeared in your paper some time since under the heading of "Alum in the Royal Drug Trade," to which I wish your kind attention, and that you do for what the article did not thinks proper to what he has actually written.

The gist of the article alluded to, without following the article closely, to point out some other, which, in my opinion, is not of a trivial nature, but specially when I think would at least be a certain remedy the evil. For I fully agree with the writer that there is a great evil in which we should as a community feel more interested.

A few years ago the subject of foreign adulteration of drugs was brought before this Congress, and as question the Solons, that a law generally known as the Drug Law was passed by chance it seems [illegible] and spurious drugs. That law has [illegible] in [illegible] years, and has undoubtedly [illegible] for many of its results, though [illegible] fact to the efficiency and power by [illegible] more politic footbal, and subjecting [illegible] and [illegible] in general upon each [illegible] political wheel of fortune. And though Government has never given it the special aid and support that its importance demands, it has, by [illegible] the attention of doctors and chemists to the subject of adulterants and keeping out foreign [illegible] of this description, unquestionably proved [illegible].

It has been objected to, as "affording protection to home adulterants" and such may have been the case, but, if so, we find rather have the opposition [illegible] within the reach of the poor and a large remedy than three thousand miles away. But there [illegible] in the remedy of our movements as a [illegible] this question. And though it would perhaps [illegible] to point out how incomplete [illegible] all arrangements to carry into vigorous execution this sanitary legal enactment are yet this is not now our object.

The writer of the article first alluded to proposed two remedies and gave us the hopes of a third, which perhaps if specified would have satisfied me without offering any suggestions upon the subject.

The plant proposed would go far, especially the first, of "avoiding all stores not properly supplied with competent clerks, and all dirty and badly arranged stores," toward curing this evil; and the second, his doctor, would lead to the employment of educated and competent pharmacists, because only such would be able to pass such an examination as the law proposed. But allow me after an experience of many years in the Drug trade, both wholesale and retail, to suggest that the evil lies still deeper and is more difficult to reach and remedy.

The evil lies among the people themselves, the ignorant, unread, hasty, money-loving, gain-seeking people at large.

[illegible] they their drugs as they buy everything else, [illegible] Herbert is to them the Herb, [illegible] the best of its kind they stop not to inquire, if the price is only right. Be of all the other [illegible] and as they buy chemical, yeast, [illegible] and spurious drugs, [illegible] the same of all, [illegible] and ground, so they buy cheap [illegible] they want a penny or two less per [illegible].

[illegible] are not free from this name [illegible] they buy for a large price [illegible] provided the cheaper [illegible] country and city, and the retailer finds a market [illegible] of customers and profits, be [illegible] to sell the [illegible] article which [illegible].

This demand, growing out of a want of proper appreciation of the use and value of medicines, has led to the [illegible] so much complained of, and making that evil in full growth.

[illegible] of appreciation of medicines, and have in the prime free doctor at the trouble, and when the remedy must be applied, has its origin, in my opinion, in [illegible] in the humanity system of [illegible], now in extensive and general in [illegible]. Men and women accustomed to take [illegible] upon trust, suffering either imaginary or real ills, put their faith to paid-for newspaper puffs, and [illegible] which are to be found in every [illegible] made to carry authority by an implied experience in the usual stereotyped commencement of "We are not in the habit of recommending, &c." Should the victim, or some friend, have [illegible] misgivings as to whether the article recommended would exactly resurrect the dead, cure confirmed consumption, eradicate cancer, and prove a speedy relief to all other ills that flesh is heir to, or they will speedily assist [illegible] the certificate of some Reverend acquaintance, who his[illegible] tried and proved and affirmed of the [illegible] healing balm; and hence doubt is put to flight, and the [illegible] nostrum is purchased and administered. If persuasion can unbelever should yet have the temerity to question the value of the rare compound, the certificate of the king of Timbuctoo, or the successor of Gengis Khan, with the fac simile of the sign manual attested by the most learned mouth, will be forthcoming to cure his infidelity, and force the truth upon him. This quack nostrums, certified to by quack chemists as having in their composition no ingredients that by any possibility produce any effect upon the human system at all, in any manner or form meeting the indications of the diseases they profess to cure, [illegible] for a certain [illegible] quack practitioner, [illegible] know but little if anything of the disease they profess an ability to remove, and raised into importance by quack advertisements, have come to have a place in the estimation of the public alone due to legitimate remedies of the materia medica, which, have been tested by the experience of learned men for ages, and therefore have their claims to confidence upon something more than accidental effects or problematical results.

As recent judicial decisions have stripped this quackery of all legal protection, by declaring no more label a sufficient trade-mark to protect the ingredients from imitation, let the public now strip it of the balance of its presumptuous claims, and subject all quackery to the judgment of common sense, and [illegible] the prevalence will disappear into thin air. To begin, here is to begin at the right place, and when the results of such efforts come to be felt, the labors of our Colleges of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Associations will also begin to be felt and appreciated. Jolly Times at a School Meeting.

New-York, Friday, July 25, 1856.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

In yesterday's issue, under the caption "Almost a Row," I appear in a very unenviable position as School officer. You state that "I rolled up my sleeves and placed myself towards Mr. HANSAN in a pugilistic attitude." Now, Sir, the facts are these, and cannot be controverted: when the minutes of the meeting were read, Mr. HANSAN took the floor, and after some preliminary remarks, moved to have the minutes amended. The motion was put from the Chair and disposed of in the negative. After which that gentleman became scurrilous in his remarks, and his gesticulations were of such a threatening character that to him alone the author should have been applied; he struck the table with his clenched hand more than six times; and when all expostulations from the Chair became of no avail, Judge McGlasson told him he was there alone by sufferance, and had no right to act thus; as he did not belong to the Fourth Ward, coupled with the threat, that his future attendance would be interdicted. The Chairman, at this event, called on the magistrate of the Fourth Ward, to protect the meeting from such scenes of disorder. I complied with the request, and certainly would have placed him under arrest, were it not that Judge McGlasson's remark had the desired effect of "cooling him down," as I was not in the slightest degree excited; and I hope your reporter may be equally cool when he again places me as "the head and front" of the offending party. BARTHOLOMEW HEALY.

State Pharmaceutical Association.

This Association holds its twenty-ninth annual meeting at Troy, on the 5th, 6th and 7th of August, and it promises an interesting meeting. Professor EDWARD NORRIS, of Hamilton College, is to read a paper. T. R. SCOTT and J. W. MCCLURE, of this City, are also expected. The ladies are not without their representatives, Mrs. H. B. STOWE having to report on the "Nuisance of Female Teachers' Wages" Miss D. ARTHURS, on the "Education of both Sexes Together," and Miss JEANNETTE L. DOUGLAS on "Physical Education." The Trojans entertain gratuitously the female teachers who attend the meeting. The President of the Association [illegible]

The City Health and Mortality.

The City Inspector reports 224 deaths in this city last week, an increase of 102 on the mortality of the previous week. Of the above number, 67 died of consumption, 22 of cholera infantum, 4 of cholera, 17 of diarrhœa, 11 of dysentery, 17 of marasmus, 11 of scarlet fever and 21 of croup. There were 20 deaths by violent causes and 29 intermediate from the various public institutions.

By way of comparison with the mortality of the corresponding week of former years, the Inspector compiles the following table:

	NUMBER OF DEATHS.
Week ending	1854.	1855.	1856.
July 5	701	521	322
July 12	617	477	357
July 19	618	441	331
July 26	1,139	649	451
Total	3,075	2,088	1,461

Four weeks of July, 1855, less than 1854 987
Four weeks of July, 1856, less than 1854 1,614

It will be seen from the foregoing that the increase for the week ending 19th inst. was 140; for the present week 102, which has been mostly of children, as the following figures will show:

DEATHS OF PERSONS OF ANY AGE, TWENTY YEARS OF AGE DURING JULY, 1856.

The Health Commissioners have sent us the following card:

OFFICE COMMISSIONERS OF HEALTH,
No. 8 CITY HALL, NEW-YORK, July 24, 1856.

TO THE PUBLIC:

Reports having obtained circulation of the existence of disease calculated to create unnecessary alarm in the public mind, the Commissioners of Health deem it proper to state that no diseases exist in this City in an epidemic form.

Notwithstanding the large increase of mortality for the week ending the 19th over the previous week, the total deaths were sixty-six (66) less than the corresponding week of 1855, which year was unusually healthy, the mortality for the year 1855 having been five thousand five hundred and twenty-six (5,526) less than in 1854.

The Commissioners, desirous of using timely precaution for the prevention of disease and the preservation of health, meet every day, (Sundays excepted,) at 12 o'clock M., at their office, No. 8 City Hall, for the purpose of acting upon all matters over which the Board have cognizance.

ISAAC O. BARNES, President.
BENJAMIN F. FISHBACK, Pres. Board of Councilmen.
R. H. THOMPSON, M. D., Health Officer.
WM. ROCKWELL, M. D., Resident Physician.
JEREMIAH MILLER, M. D., Health Commissioner.

Natural and Bent Knees for Ship-Timber.

The following has been furnished us as the result of the trial of the relative strength of natural and bent ships' knees, which was commenced on Wednesday the 16th, and concluded on Tuesday the 22d inst., having occupied six days. It is unnecessary to give the mass of figures which have accumulated in that time, and which will appear in the report to the Navy Department. The figures are given below to the point at which the strongest natural knee broke, and which is probably quite as far as is required for all practical purposes.

The knees of both kinds were fastened as near as possible, in the same manner, and it should be noticed that the strain was applied to one end of each knee, with the fulcrum at or near the centre of the throat, while the other part was fastened securely so as not to allow it to give, consequently the figures below give the strain on one end or one half of the knee.

First knee sliding 10½ inch. (This knee measured 1 inch smaller in the throat than the other,) with a leverage of 4 feet 6½ inches, was sprung inward:

1 inch by pressure of	8,500 lbs.
2 inch, pressure of	10,000 lbs.
Average pressure required to spring each half inch up to two inches	7,625 lbs.

Bent knee sliding 10½ inches, with a leverage of 5 feet 4½ inches, was sprung inward:

1 inch by pressure of	8,500 lbs.
2 inch, pressure of	11,500 lbs.
Average pressure required to spring each half inch up to two inches	9,750 lbs.

Natural knee sliding 10½ inches, same angle as bent knee, with a leverage of 5 feet 4½ inches, was sprung inward:

1 inch by pressure of	7,500 lbs.
2 inch, pressure of	10,500 lbs.
Average pressure required to spring each half inch up to two inches	8,125 lbs.

The hydraulic press was then reversed for the purpose of forcing the knees outward. This was a very interesting trial, as it has been considered by many that a stick of timber having been bent could be very easily brought back to its original shape. Bent knee, sliding 10½ inches, with a leverage of 5 feet 4½ inches, was sprung outward:

1 inch by a pressure of	14,000 lbs.
2 inches by a pressure of	22,500 lbs.
Average pressure required to spring this knee each half inch up to two inches	15,625 lbs.

The question was then raised, that the pieces of timber which were bolted on the knee, to represent the deck, beam, and the side of the ship, as they butted closely together, greatly increased the power required to spring the knee outward. For the purpose of testing this, the end of the beam was cut off so that the ends of the timbers were entirely open and clear of each other. The knee had been already sprung outward ten inches; the pressure was taken off and it went back five inches. The pressure was then applied the second time, and upon reaching the point where the strain had been taken off, at the first trial, it required to spring it one inch a pressure of 26,000 lbs., thus showing that the bent knee required more than double the power to strain outward than inward. This knee was sprung ten inches without the least break, at a pressure on the last half inch of 26,000 lbs.

The last natural knee, same angle as above, sliding 10½ inches, was a remarkably fine specimen, such as is rarely found, in some parts very considerably larger than the bent one. It was strongly and carefully bolted, with a leverage of 5 feet 4½ inches, it required to spring it outward

1 inch, a pressure of	22,500 lbs.
2 inches, a pressure of	32,500 lbs.

At this point it broke, near the centre of the throat.

The bent knees, by this trial, seem to possess much greater elasticity, after springing them inward or outward some distance, and then allowing them to go back. Upon the pressure being applied the second time, it was found that the bent knee sustained a slightly greater pressure, and in another about six per cent. less, thereby showing that, after springing the knee once, either inward or outward, its strength has not been essentially impaired.

The natural knees that were tested were much better than an average, whereas the bent knees, if bent perfectly, cannot vary materially in strength, as it requires good, sound timber to make them.

One Muzzled Dog and Loose Laws.

On Friday, we saw a dog in Brooklyn that had a muzzle on. The sight was so unexpected, that for a while we were very much shocked. But on recovering, a sensation of extraordinary pleasure glowed through all our frame—it was an evidence that we had a Mayor and a law, and, probably a Policeman, and possibly a law abiding dog-owner—who at the same time was not too poor to buy a muzzle. But you should have seen how the children ran after the poor thing—the novelty of the sight collected an immense crowd of them, and threatened at one time to interfere with the regular passage of the cars. "Vot for is the wiry gauze over his nose?" was the shout from the greenhorns—which earnest query the knowing ones busied themselves with answering. One said, "they vos dieting the puppy, and vos trying to prevent him from eating anything but spoon victuals." Another said, "it was to keep the flies off him;" another said, "it was to keep him from stabbing his nose when he fell down, and that his master was tender of him." A public school boy, with a pack of books under his arm, said "it was because of the electricity that was in the atmosphere." One innocent youth suggested that "may be it was the law"—but this was hooted down as absurd, "for," said they "if it's the law, why ain't all dogs just so?"

We trust the example will not be lost upon other residents in Brooklyn. Now that the ice is broken, now that the muzzle is recognized among the institutions, we have hopes that it may be very into fashion. For we have a great respect for Brooklyn [illegible] shadow of the Brooklyn trees, swing mad, longing to bite somebody and abhorring water! simply because [illegible] Pathfinder, enthusiastic American, hearty Buchanoniter, with a hydrophobic poison in their system. Gentlemen, [illegible] hopes [illegible] exacerbate the Democracy [illegible] Buchanan. Dogs should remember that "every dog is worth something—fifty cents or so in all cases, they will not allow too much money floating around to get demonetized. Every man should not dinge—like that city shaking is chaos.

Dead Dogs on Manhattan.

About two weeks since a small white dog ran into the house of Mr. Geo. Wiss, of Manhattan-place. His owner followed him, secured and killed him, without his doing any damage. On Wednesday morning another rabid dog ran back and forward through Broad-street several times, snapping at all the dogs he met, and 22 are known to have been killed before he was killed. There has been a considerable slaughtering and mangling process going on among the canine species since.

The Bible Union.

OFFICE OF THE NEW-YORK CHRONICLE,
Friday, July 25, 1856.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

In your paper of the 23d, we find a copy of the pamphlet recently published by Rev. Dr. MACLAY, in regard to the affairs of the American Bible Union. The general accuracy of this document we are not prepared to affirm or deny, as it touches on subjects beyond our knowledge and experience, but the following paragraph, relating to our transactions with the Bible Union, contains important errors which we desire to correct. Dr. MACLAY is made to say "that a portion of the New-York Chronicle, secured by an unusual appropriation of $1,000, for the publication of revision matter, was found to be greatly under the absolute control of the Secretary, and to be used according to his pleasure. I do not object to the appropriation made by the Board; but I think the object of the appropriation had been perverted to invest the Secretary with power which no such officer should possess."

Now, the truth is:

1. The Bible Union never engaged to pay us a thousand dollars a year.

2. Of the amount which it did agree to pay us, for every four dollars which comes to us, five go to Dr. MACLAY's son in payment of services for the Bible Union.

3. The space in our paper occupied by the Bible Union matter, and the papers which we furnish weekly to that organization, bring us about one-half the amount which we obtain for the same amount of space and of papers from other sources.

4. The right to exclude whatever we please from the Bible Union department of our paper, has been from the first conceded to us by contract, and it is has been "under the absolute control of the Secretary," it has been so by no fault of ours, and by no action in the terms of the agreement. We have not been behind the curtain to pay the piper, in which the Bible Union editor (Dr. M.'s son) dances its duty, but have left him at liberty to pursue his own course, the same as we do those who advertise with us in getting up the form of their advertisements, reserving to ourselves the right to exclude whatever we consider not in keeping with the design of our paper.

If the Bible Union Editor has been deterred for any cause from acting independently, way should the New-York Chronicle be charged with a subserviency inconsistent with its identity and its dignity? Yours, respectfully,

PUBLISHERS OF THE NEW-YORK CHRONICLE.

A night or two since, when the moon was at its full, a lady, not old enough to be venerable, nor young enough to be particularly attractive, not well enough dressed to ruin any man, nor so shabbily attired as to fill any one with aversion, entered the Peck-slip ferry boat, with intention, apparently, of going to Williamsburg. But her extreme anxiety to occupy a front seat on the boat attracted the attention of a benevolent sailor who was also a passenger. She seated herself at the very verge of the bows, and soon attempted to slide overboard. The rough hand of the sailor caught her by the shoulder and drew her back. She looked up, gave him a blessing, over the left, and was very emphatic in her advice to him to pay strict attention to his own business. He stepped back, and, setting one foot firmly upon her skirts, telegraphed a deck-hand to come to his assistance. Before his arrival the lady made another leap forward. But the seams were bursting, and her skirts true. So, for a second time, she longing for a cold bath was frustrated. The sailor gave the deck-hand, taking such a shoulder, lifted her back over the chains. If a stenographer had been present, and taken down verbatim the language which she used upon the occasion, it might have been transmitted to posterity as a specimen chapter for the young swearer's guide. As the steam went down, however, a countryman asked her why she was so anxious to throw herself away when just in the hay-day—the Autumn of life. She protested that all she was after was "a fresh smell of the salt sea." She "had come out for a sail, and never could enjoy it unless she got her head well down in the water." For a free country, she thought this was a little the most tyrannical she had found this side the Lakes of Killarney.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

QUIZ.

'Twas as quiet yesterday as water. But few arrests were made by the Police. A few Saturday-night drunkards and rowdies were "brought up" and punished according to law and usage, but no cases of general interest were before the Police magistrates.

RUFFIANISM.

On Saturday morning a most shameful piece of ruffianism was perpetrated in Hudson-street. A man named John Rideback and a woman named Maria King were assaulted on the sidewalk in front of their premises in the most savage manner, by nearly a dozen drunken men. One of the fellows struck the woman King in the face, blackening both her eyes, and felling her to the pavement. While prostrate she was kicked and beaten most brutally. Rideback went to her assistance, but being attacked by several men was nearly killed himself. Both his eyes were closed, and his face badly cut. Rideback and the woman King then escaped from the ruffians, and reached their dwelling, which, however, they had no sooner entered, than the front windows, blinds, sash, glass, etc., were smashed in by a volley of paving-stones and brickbats. Officers Story, Slater and Kemp, of the Fifth Ward, soon reached the spot, and after a struggle and free use of their locusts, succeeded in arresting three men, who gave their names as WILLIAM P. WOOD, THOMAS CRAPLIEND and CHARLES F. HILL, but their confederates escaped. The defendants were subsequently taken before Alderman GLASSBY, and held to bail to answer the charge at the Court of Sessions.

ALLEGED FRAUD.

A man named Campbell, of the firm of Campbell & Walter, real estate brokers, was arrested on Saturday, and brought before Justice FRANKHAUSER, charged with fraud. Aaron Spinning, the prosecutor, made an affidavit by which it appears that he (Spinning) was some time since assaulted with a sling-shot, and so severely injured that he fell into very distressed circumstances, and was obliged to pawn some family relics, consisting of thirty silver spoons, a sugar tongs, &c., at Simpson's pawn shop, for $25. Subsequently he obtained from Campbell & Walter a loan of $61, less the $25, on the property, and agreed to pay the interest and principal in installments, which he had done until nearly the whole was paid up, when he found that Campbell had been before Justice WOOD, and made an affidavit that his name was Spinning. That he had pawned this property for $25, and lost the ticket. Upon this affidavit he got the goods from Simpson, signing a receipt therefor as Mr. Spinning. Mr. Spinning alleges that Campbell intended to defraud him out of his property by chicanery. On Campbell's arrest the pawn-ticket which he had sworn he lost was found in his possession. He was held in the sum of $1,000 to answer.

RIVER MURDER.

Two characters, named John Monahan alias "Stutter John," and John Ward were arrested on Friday night, for plundering the cabin of the brig Sewell French, foot of Jefferson-street. Justice WOOD committed the prisoners for examination.

The Police of the Seventh Ward made a descent, on Saturday night, on the premises corner of Market and Madison streets, and arrested GEORGE BUCKING and wife, the keepers of it, and eight other persons whom they found there. The prisoners were all brought before Justice WOOD, who committed them for an examination on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Miscellaneous.

COUP DE SOLEIL.

An unknown man was struck down by the heat in North William-street, about 11 o'clock Sunday forenoon. He was taken to the Hospital.

JOHN H. JONES died on Saturday at No. 9 Manhattan-place, from coup de soleil. His age was 30 years. Coroner GAMBLE held an inquest upon the body.

DROWNED.

A German named Daniel Whitbeck was drowned [illegible] man. Deceased was a native of a dark mark. His age was 28. He leaves a wife behind.

SUICIDE.

Agnes Sturgeon, a native of Prussia, aged 22 years committed suicide on Saturday, at No. 171 Ninth-street, by taking laudanum. The immediate cause of the act was the [illegible] of Coroner PERRY. Verdict "suicide by taking laudanum." Deceased was a married woman. The husband testified that she had attempted poisoning herself before, and that of late she was very depressed in spirits, in consequence of her having attempted suicide not to drink again any intoxicating liquors.

WHERE'S THE POLICE?

One of the patrolmen attached to the office of the Chief of Police left on Saturday, while passing from Broadway and Walker street, to John and Cliff streets, a copper star with copper ribbons, with the words "Chief's office" on it, and a silver shield marked "Aid." The finder can have it by the finder will return it to the office of the Chief of Police, he will be acting very properly.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Judge Ingraham.

Morris vs. Noble.—INGRAHAM, F. J.—I feel controlled by the decision of the General Term in this case, although individually I am still of the opinion that the defendant is not bound to account for his earnings in the action. By that decision it was settled that the defendant having, during the time named in the agreement, violated it by engaging in the sailing business, the plaintiff has a right to elect to be part of the business to be attended to under the agreement, and share in the profits. On the hearing of the motion, I must order judgment for the plaintiff for one-half of such net proceeds as the referee has reported to have been earned.

[illegible] is not entitled to interest from the day at which the defendant to account, and an accounting he would then be entitled to interest. In the present case, the interest should be calculated from the commencement of the action, no account having been previously rendered.

Judgments to be entered according to the above directions.

Mitchell and Wife vs. Stearns and Others.—Under the decisions in Roberts vs. Randall, (6 Pr. Rep. 337,) and Mulvey vs. Davison, (6 Pr. R. 113,) I think this order must be discharged. Those cases have been followed in this Court at Special Term on various occasions, and for uniformity in the practice, should be conformed to by us. In Reiter vs. Noyes, (1 Smith, 246), may be found the views of the Court on this question.

Motion granted to vacate order to hold to bail on defendants' stipulating not to bring any action. Costs of defendants to abide event.

Isaac P. Martin vs. George Kops.—Order of reference to William Kent.

Archibald Cochran vs. Abraham Ostlinger.—Motion to vacate order of arrest granted.

Pauline Hearing vs. David Hearing.—Order appointing next friend to plaintiff to conduct suit, &c.

Thomas Gregan vs. Dennis McDermott.—Motion to amend judgment roll granted.

John L. Hudson vs. Alexander Keatts.—Motion granted on defendant stipulating not to sue. Defendant's costs to abide event without prejudice to renew motion.

Before Judge Roosevelt.

Joseph W. Trust vs. James Ferguson, et al.—BRADY J. This action was brought to enforce a lien for the storage of planes that had been wrongfully taken from the plaintiff after his lien had attached, and the complaint prays for judgment against the defendants—that the plane-forms be sold, and that $1.62 two dollars (the amount of the lien) be paid to the plaintiff from the proceeds, together with interest from March 1, 1855, and the costs of the action, and that he have such other and further relief as may be just. The verdict rendered by the Jury impanneled to try the issues presented on the pleadings found the counter claim set up to be $80, and the claim of the plaintiff to be $62, and thereupon the plaintiff judgment for $1. On this state of facts, and on the pleadings, the defendants ask for costs, and the plaintiff insists that the action being equitable in its nature, the costs are, under section 306, at the discretion of the Court. It is said in Fox vs. McGregor, 3 Barbour 43, that an inn keeper's remedy to enforce a lien for keeping the horse of his guest is by action in the nature of a bill in Chancery, the Court citing 1 Cow. Tr., 2d ed., 290. On examination of the book referred to, it is said to be "supposed that the only way in which satisfaction from a lien can be enforced is by a bill in Chancery"—referring to 1 Strange, 656; 1 Hoff, N. P. R., 336; 3d Kent Com., 3d ed., 643, and other cases. And we find, on examination of Edwards on Bailments, the statement of the same principle in reference to innkeepers' liens, with a reference to the cases just stated; also, Fox vs. McGregor, supra, and 6 Mod. R., 112. Upon examination of 3d Kent, we find the context to be: "I presume that satisfaction of a lien may be enforced by bill in Chancery," without referring to any authority, and leaving the subject upon the opinion of the author only. With due deference to the learned author of Cowen's Treatise, I assert that the authorities referred to on this point have no bearing upon the principle stated by him in the context, and that they relate to actions of trover, in which the doctrine of equity power or jurisdiction is not suggested. Where the lien existed and the remedy at law was inadequate, I have no doubt the Court of Chancery had the power to enforce any right, but I deny that on the authorities referred to such a proceeding as suggested could be sustained, and certainly not, in any case, unless the matter in dispute, exclusive of costs, exceeded the value of $100. 1 Barbour, Ch. Pr., 50; 3 R. S., 178, § 63, (orig 207.) In this case the value of the property was not proved on the trial, and was not passed upon by the jury; if it is I did mean, it should be met by the diffi-culty that the equitable remedy of enforce the lien is predicated upon the possession of the property by the lienor, and not where he has parted with it or it has been violently taken from his custody. Voluntarily yielding possession is a waiver of the lien. 1 East, 4; 26 Wend., 167; 2 Kent, (7th ed.) 819; 3 Hill, 465. But where the chattel or thing to which the lien has attached is tortuously taken from the lienor, he may maintain replevin to recover it and enforce his lien. Bigelow vs. Hatch, 4 Hill, 43. The complaint here does not set the possession of the property affected by the lien, but for a judgment for $62 against the defendant, and a sale of that property to satisfy that judgment. There is no proof in the case from which the particular property designated could be described such a judgment could be rendered, and the property itself is neither in the possession of the Court, an officer appointed by it, nor of the plaintiff. Although the nature of the claim may be equitable, the action is one to recover a sum of money, and on the proof and the finding of the Jury no judgment other than a judgment for the recovery of money can be entered. In these views of this application, it seems to me conclusive that the defendants are entitled to their costs. I admit that the questions presented are new and embarrassing, but I think, aside from the exact character of this action, there was no necessity for an "equity" action, contemplated by section 306. But if there was, and the property was so designed, the facts proved do not place it within that jurisdiction. The defendant's costs ordered, and judgment for plaintiff for $1.

GENERAL TERM.
